QuakeCoRE | NZ Centre for Earthquake Resilience

Te Apārangi
o Hiranga Rū
QuakeCoRE | NZ Centre for Earthquake Resilience

Our Tohu

1. Partnership, trust, equal standing, expertise
2. The puhoro design on the “Q” is a split koru and represents the swiftness of earthquakes
3. Colours - represent balance between the chaos of earthquakes and the approach to effectively build earthquake resilience in all its forms
 - Orange is also consistent with Rūaumoko who is the Atua of earthquakes, volcanoes and seasons
 - Blue is a calming colour representing stability and reliability

Our Objectives

Ensure that QuakeCoRE gives recognition to Te Tiriti o Waitangi / Treaty of Waitangi

- Provide leadership and guidance - Māori Research aspirations and capabilities pertaining to earthquake resilience;
- Foster development and implementation of research to improve Māori resilience to earthquakes in partnership with QuakeCoRE stakeholders, Iwi, hapū, whānau and Māori researchers;
- Provide advice and guidance to the QuakeCoRE Board and Management with the aim of improving Māori research in QuakeCoRE;
- Monitor progress against annual Māori research targets and outcomes

What do we need to work on together?

- Māori involvement in decision-making (as a Treaty partner) vs. just influencing outcomes;
- A QuakeCoRE Aotearoa wide approach – organisationally and research wise;
- Embedding an organisational and cultural shift that embraces Mātauranga Māori, core Māori values and a Treaty of Waitangi framework
- “Research by and with Māori” including recruitment strategies, internships, mentoring, and general capability build;
- Development of strong Māori / Iwi / Marae / community partnerships – community-based participatory research
- Indigenous international research approaches and networks

PATAI?

RŪAUMOKO

Taringa whakarongo kia rite kia mau

Ko Rūaumoko e ngunguru nei

Ei au, au auē hā

kā tu te ihi kā tu te wana

Kia mau kia whakawhenua au i ahau

He tātai kōhatu mauri

He tātai tangata ki te whenua

He mata tiki Pakiwaitara

Listen get ready hold fast

Rūaumoko god of earthquakes

Through you the land shakes and trembles

Face fear be one with the land

Tell stories about your ancestors here on earth

Never forget the spring and the stone

from which you were hewn
